The Distance Learning Program (DLP), designed to improve the contact lens knowledge of educators and prepare them for the Fellowship Exam launched earlier this month. The DLP is a series of assessments designed to guide members through the IACLE Contact Lens Course module by module. There are four phases to the self-study program to allow members to adjust to the online environment. After working through each section of the ICLC, members complete a related assignment, submitting directly through IACLETOP with instant feedback available. Progression through the four phases of the DLP is time released, staged to help pace learning in preparation for the Fellowship Exam. The stages repeat until all modules of the ICLC are covered.
